

Still time to get in the frame.....

'Your Yorkshire Dales National Park: a snapshot' runs until 9 November 2012 so with half term approaching there is no better time to get out and about and take some photos.

Drystone Radio's fabulous DJ Daisy Watkiss will be one of the judges looking for the winning photograph in the under 18's section of the competition.

Winners will receive a framed copy of their image and a backpack filled with delicious local produce, as well as having their picture featured in an exhibition at the Dales Countryside Museum, Hawes next February, will be published in The Visitor 2013 newspaper and in the new National Park Management Plan.

Photographs must have been taken within the National Park boundary and, ideally, should be sent with a note of what you think the National Park should be like in the future.

Images can be of any subject in the categories of:

- Wildlife and habitats
- People and places
- Fun and adventure
- Farming
- Tourism
- Working in the Dales

To find out how to enter you just need to visit the our website at www.yorkshiredales.org.uk/your

Happy snapping!
